

Home > Money > Insura... > Home

'Why am I being charged triple on my home insurance for being a loyal customer?'

AdChoices

ORGEOUS
GIFT
SETS

HOP NOW

does not lead to the rewards you might expect CREDIT: A RICHARD ALLEN FOR THE TELEGRAPH

Preparing for the unknown

Sponsored

By James Connington

29 MAY 2016 • 7:12AM

Common sense would dictate that being loyal to a company should result in a financial reward – such as better price, or higher return.

But no. How naive. The reality is that customers who stay put end up paying more – in the form of a “loyalty tax”.

- Worst offenders include insurers, where customers who don't move suffer steep rises in premiums – while the best prices are offered to new customers.

Sponsored stories

Recommended by

50 Celebs Who Support Trump (Photos)

BreakVille

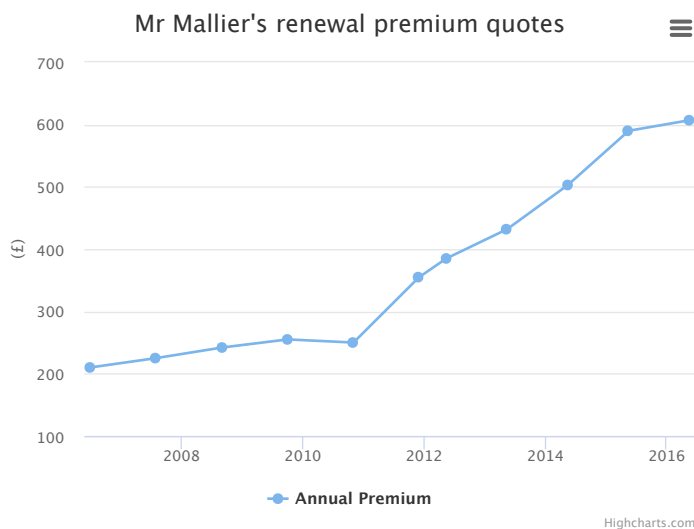

17 Heart-Breaking Photos From World War II

goodmad

Telegraph Money reader William Mallier, 51, has been a customer of Halifax for nearly 30 years, having previously worked for the building society-turned bank, now part of Lloyds Banking Group.

Since moving into their home in 2006, Mr Mallier and his wife have held a buildings and contents insurance policy with Halifax. Over this time, the annual premium has increased from £210 to £607 for the latest premium renewal quote, despite the couple having never made a claim.

Using the Halifax website, he was able to obtain a quote for slightly different but comparable cover for £165.07, which included a £50 cashback discount.

Aside from one year, 2010-11, their premium has risen every single year, with an annual increase of 11.7pc.

The biggest increases happened since the financial crisis, during which time inflation has been at record lows.

Was this a period in which insurance costs were rising across the board? No: from 2012 to 2016, according to the Association of British Insurers, the average household insurance premium has been gradually declining.

Throughout the years, the renewal notices sent to Mr Mallier informed him that a “Valued Customer” discount had been included in his renewal cost.

AT A GLANCE

Insurance premium tax

Alamy

- A tax levied on general insurance premiums, including travel insurance, home insurance and car insurance
- There is a standard rate of 9.5pc and a higher rate of 20pc, depending on the insurance type
- The standard rate increased from 6pc to 9.5pc last year, and will increase again in October 2016 to 10pc
- The higher rate applies to travel insurance, appliance insurance and some car insurance
- There are some exemptions where no tax applies, including life insurance
- Insurance premiums had been on the way down, but are now heading up again

Insurance premium tax, which is included in the price of the vast majority of insurance products, has increased recently, moving from 6pc to 9.5pc in 2015, then to 10pc later this year (for the standard rate). However, this accounts for only a small proportion of the increase experienced by Mr Mallier and his wife.

Reader Service: Get a quote for Telegraph Home Insurance

Should companies have a duty to tell you that you're overpaying?

Some say consumers should be switched on enough to spot companies' dirty tricks – it's a case of caveat emptor, or "buyer beware".

But critics of the insurance industry say companies should be forced to alert customers to opportunities to save money – as happens in other sectors, such as energy.

According to Mr Mallier, at no point did Halifax tell them an alternative policy offered similar cover for a lower cost.

In a letter to Halifax, Mr Mallier complained: "None of the numerous renewal notices provided us with the crucial information that our current premium was uncompetitive."

Halifax then provided a new renewal quote, knocking £120 off the price, effectively undoing the past three years of increases – but offering no justification of why such increases had been applied.

A Halifax spokesman said some of the increase could be attributed to policy amendments made in 2011.

"As is common across the insurance industry, we offer introductory discounts to new customers in order to remain competitive in the market.

"We make it clear to customers in their renewal documents that they are free to either call us to discuss and review their needs or to choose not to renew their policy."

Should companies have a duty to tell you that you're overpaying?

Yes - they shouldn't rely upon inertia to make profit

No - it's people's own responsibility to shop around

RPESTER

The renewal documentation sent to Mr Mallier did contain all of this information, as Halifax stated.

However, in the years preceding 2014, this phrase (or similar) was included prominently: "Unless your needs and circumstances have changed, there is no need for you to contact us – your insurance will automatically renew."

In 2014 to 2015 the sentence was elongated and moved up, before being removed in 2016, where it was made much clearer that there were other options to consider. In the past, Mr Mallier has also been sent marketing leaflets with "There's no need to shop around" on the front cover.

Halifax added that the product currently for sale online, which Mr Mallier obtained a quote for, and the existing product were not the same, so "are not directly comparable".

There may be differences under the bonnet, but both come with the same excess of £100 on buildings and contents claims and include legal cover. In fact, the cheaper online quote includes £2,500 of personal belongings cover, which the existing cover does not.

Mr Mallier's case is an extreme one in the realm of home insurance, according to independent policy experts. Even bigger disparities occur in the car insurance market. According to data compiled by comparethemarket.com, the average premium (which can be seen as a proxy for renewal premiums) for home insurance is 13pc higher than the best price available.

For car insurance, the average premium is 20pc higher.

Budget 2016: winners and losers

View Gallery

Kasey Cassells, insurance expert at Uswitch, explained that most insurers only offered cheaper insurance to new customers to entice them.

Thereafter the cost rises steeply. Only those policyholders who switch routinely each year win the game.

She said: "Whether it's insurance, energy or banking, staying with the same provider rarely gets you the best deal. Insurers are always looking to win new customers by offering great rates. Never fall in to the trap of thinking loyalty pays."

The Financial Conduct Authority is due to bring in new rules which will require insurers to display the previous year's premium on every renewal premium quote, to ensure policyholders are aware of the extent of any increases.

In Mr Mallier's case, the extent of the price rises only became apparent because of detailed record-keeping.

Millions simply fail to notice.

Have you been subject to a "loyalty tax"? Email james.connington@telegraph.co.uk

○ Have a question for our experts? Email moneyexpert@telegraph.co.uk. The best of the answers are included in our weekly newsletter

Find out more about Telegraph Home Insurance here

Follow The Telegraph

The Telegraph

Like Page 3.8M likes

Follow @Telegraph

READ MORE ABOUT:

- HALIFAX
- CONSUMER AFFAIRS
- CAR INSURANCE
- CONTENTS INSURANCE

Sponsored

Preparing for the unknown Pound is vital

MONEY MOST VIEWED

I Mapped: Which London neighbourhoods have seen the biggest house price rises since the crash?

09 Jan 2017, 2:26pm

Can 'at-home' care be cheaper than a care home?

10 Jan 2017, 11:13am

3

Buy-to-let mortgage deals dry up as lenders pull back

09 Jan 2017, 4:24pm

4

FTSE on a record streak: but what will happen when interest rates rise?

10 Jan 2017, 4:15pm

5

Court awards £223,000 to 96-year-old in inheritance tax advice dispute

09 Jan 2017, 2:59pm

Sponsored by Barnebys

UT
T Lady's 14K White Gold Dinner Ring, with a round

Low estimate: 8 100 GBP
Crescent City Auction Gallery

View lot

Lady's Platinum Dinner Ring, with a cushion cut 7.8

Low estimate: 6 500 GBP
Crescent City Auction Gallery

View lot

USA

Low estimate: 210 GBP
MPO Auctions

View lot

Rolex Quick

Low es
Jasper?

View

powered by DunhillTravelDeals

ope
11-Day Uluru Field of Light Special

ursions Cairns, Sydney, Alice Springs, more

View Now

$2499+

View Now

8-Day Machu Picchu & Peruvian Amazon Pkg

Save 20%, regularly $1720+

$1376+

View Now

Air & 12-Day Croatia & Slovenia Guided Tour

Special discounted price

$2490+

View Now

Sponsored stories

Recommended by

This Bohemian Inspired Living Space From World Market Is To Die For

Cost Plus World Market

How Much Money Are People Getting From Reverse Mortgages?

Smart Money Lifestyles

White House Triggers Stock Market Collapse

The Sovereign Investor

Apple's Secret Project Stuns Investors

fool

Pinterest loves these World Market products (and so do we!)

Cost Plus World Market

Obama Quietly Signed Bill Giving $42.4 B "Cash Rebate" to 119 Million Americans

The Oxford Club

Tiny Device a Forefront of Technological Breakthrough (Shocking)

The Sovereign Investor

Free Report: Why Agent Engagement Matters Now More Than Ever

Salesforce

Why CRM Software Is Way Better Than Excel

Insightly #1 Free CRM for Small Business

Money latest

FTSE on a record streak: but what will happen when interest rates rise?

10 Jan 2017, 4:15pm

Holiday bargain: Eurostar sale cuts child return to Disneyland to £25

10 Jan 2017, 4:14pm

Can 'at-home' care be cheaper than a care home?

10 Jan 2017, 8:29am

◆ PREMIUM

Questor: out-of-favour sausage skin firm is keenly priced – and might even attract a bid

10 Jan 2017, 7:00am

Could spending £40,000 on your colleagues pay off?

10 Jan 2017, 7:00am

Buy-to-let mortgage deals dry up as lenders pull back

09 Jan 2017, 4:24pm

Court awards £223,000 to 96-year-old in inheritance tax advice dispute

09 Jan 2017, 2:59pm

Four-year savings bond pays 1.95pc for first time in six months

09 Jan 2017, 2:25pm

Mapped: Which London neighbourhoods have seen the biggest house price rises since the crash?

09 Jan 2017, 2:20pm

Mortgage borrowers denied cheap deals when they move home

09 Jan 2017, 11:05am

House price growth jumps to highest since March despite weaker market post-Brexit vote

09 Jan 2017, 10:48am

Bank fraud landmark: TSB repays victim and admits giving criminal a bank account

09 Jan 2017, 9:18am

This commuter hotspot's house price growth pays for a season ticket in just eight days

09 Jan 2017, 7:52am

▶ 02:00

Money for life: how to get your parents to help you buy a house

09 Jan 2017, 6:00am

'The housing crisis has spread to everybody', says former boss of Shelter

08 Jan 2017, 10:00pm

Could you be the 'fund manager next door'?

08 Jan 2017, 7:30am

◆ PREMIUM

Sir John Madejski: 'My fortune has been decimated. I lost hundreds of millions'

08 Jan 2017, 7:15am

◆ PREMIUM

If a former pensions minister cashes in her final salary plans, perhaps you should too

RICHARD EVANS  08 Jan 2017, 7:11am

